GOING TO CAMP KINEO FOR THEIR VACATION

Washington Boys to Pass the Summer in Maine.

WILL BE JOINED BY OTHERS

Several States Will Be Represented by College Students, All Under Supervision of Competent Teachers.

A number of Washington boys will join their comrades from several States in spending the summer vacation in camp in the mountain and lake region of Maine. George H. Sensner, headmaster of the Emerson Institute, is to have personal charge of the boys.

Already a number of young men from the private schools in Washington and nearby cities have joined the party, and all are looking forward with keen interest to the time when school will be closed and they will be free to cry "on to camp."

The camp, situated on Long Lake, Maine, in the midst of New England's most alluring scenery, is known as "Camp Kineo for Boys," and is owned by G. H. Sensner, of Washington, and F. D. Sears, of Boston, Mass. It was established for well-to-do parents who desire to give their sons the pleasure of outdoor life, entirely free from the many objectionable features of the average summer resort. Only boys of the best moral character and good habits are admitted to the camp, and care is taken to get only boys who represent the best and most influential homes of the country.

Living in Tents.
The boys live in floored tents, row, swim, fish, play tennis and ball, and, in fact, enjoy every sort of aquatic and athletic sport. A summer school is also run in connection with the camp, and those boys who desire it can obtain instruction at a reasonable figure under the most skillful teachers. An enjoyable feature of the camp each year, is a tour of the White Mountains of New Hampshire, taken on foot or by coach. The boys will spend about ten days in the White Mountain region visiting the many points of interest to be seen in this "Switzerland of America."

The boys sleep in floored tents on canvas cots, but a one-story frame building serves as a dining hall and assembly room, and here the boys gather at evening on rainy days, to sing songs, play games, and to have entertainments. The boys are in charge of a competent corps of college men and teachers, who are selected from the leading boys' schools of the country on account of their special fitness for this kind of work. Constant care and oversight is exercised on the part of these men, but in such a way as not to be irksome to the boys.

Under Competent Care.
Mr. Sensner and Mr. Sears have personal supervision of the camp. They are both college graduates and teachers of boys by profession, and have had many years of camping experience.

The Washington boys will be joined by their friends from the Boys' Latin School of Baltimore, the Fredericksburg College of Virginia, the Charlotte Hall School of Maryland, and other famous schools. The Washington party will leave here about June 29, going to New York by rail, where they take the Fall River steamer to Boston, stopping there for a half-day's sight-seeing. From Boston, steamer will be taken for Portland, where the main camping party will be met, and boat taken for camp.

BARNUM & BAILEY MOVE TO BALTIMORE

Strike of Laborers Fails to Halt the Circus.

About 150 canvasmen and laborers connected with the Barnum & Bailey circus went on a strike last night. It caused some delay in getting the circus on the train for Baltimore. One hundred extra men were employed, and as there were enough of the regulars left to direct operations, not as much trouble occurred as was anticipated. The men say that all the remaining regulars will strike today in Baltimore if they are not granted an increase of $5 a month.

Despite the delay, the work of sending the circus out of town was performed with a swiftness which caused those not accustomed to the sight to open their eyes. No sooner had the supper been finished when the cook tent came down with a rush, and then the other tents followed fast.

The press tent and Mr. Bailey's private tent were struck before the evening performance began. When the last of the audience had passed into the big tent the work of taking down the menagerie tent started, and before the performance was half over the animals had been moved out, the tent had been taken down, and the entire approach to the show had changed its appearance, so that those coming out were somewhat confused by the novel appearance of the grounds.

No sooner had the audience vacated a section of seats than a gang of men began the work of taking them down and piling them into wagons which were driven in from the side opposite the main entrance. Each seat is numbered and they are put in the wagons in regular rotation, so that when another town is reached the wagons are unloaded in the same order in which they were loaded at the last place and the work of putting up the seats goes on with machine-like regularity.

As each trapeze and aerial act is completed during the show its paraphernalia is taken down and carried out without disturbing the succeeding performers, so that when the chariot races, which mark the end of the show, start the top of the tent contains nothing but the electric lights.

The lights are taken down gradually, being removed from each section of the tent as fast as the seats are packed. Then the tent poles on the sides are removed one by one until only the center ones remain. These center poles are gradually lowered, which is no easy task, as they are sixty feet long and thirteen inches in diameter, the canvas is folded and the circus has disappeared.

The wagons are run on the cars in regular rotation, those containing the material to be used first at the new camp going on first so that they may come off first and hasten to the new site.

WILLIAM H. BARTON'S REMAINS CREMATED
The funeral of William H. Barton, for thirty-four years a clerk in the office of the Solicitor of the Treasury Department, who died at his home, 1308 H Street northwest, on Sunday, was held yesterday afternoon from the chapel of Lee's undertaking establishment. M., of which he was a charter member. The honorary pallbearers were selected from the members of this order. The body was cremated.

Stereotypers' Union No. 19 of Washington, nominated five candidates for delegate to the second annual convention of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union, to be held in Washington the second week in August. KNIFE PLUNGED DEEP IN SHIPYARD TRUST
Reorganization Scheme Will Call for a Drastic Scaling in Securities.

NEW YORK, May 13.—It is learned that the plan of reorganization of the finances of the United States Shipbuilding Company, which is now being worked out, does not call for any assessment on the bonds of the company, as was reported yesterday. It was officially stated yesterday that there also will be no assessment on the company stock.

A great deal of interest is manifested over the reorganization of the finances of the corporation, as a great deal of cash is absolutely necessary to put the company in a sound condition financially. It is estimated that fully $3,000,000 is needed for this purpose.

Those identified with the reorganization stated last night that the important interest holders of the company's securities have virtually agreed to supply whatever cash is necessary. These people have no hesitation in stating that there will be a drastic scaling down of securities. The excuse is given that the knife will not be spared, as the case is an urgent one.

It is now regarded as likely that there will be no reorganization with receivership of the shipyard trust. As a matter of fact, the securities of the company are still in first hands.

George R. Sheldon, manager of the syndicate which took about $4,500,000 of the company's bonds at the time the Trust Company of the Republic found itself in trouble, is interested in the work of reorganization. C. W. Wetmore, president of the North American Company, is also interested, and C. M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel Corporation, has also been consulted. Max Pam, one of the directors of the company, is reported to have taken an active part in the reorganization. It was stated last night that the plan of reorganization that has been published is entirely wrong, and that, as a matter of fact, only the general outlines of the reorganization had been agreed upon.

DEMOCRATS MAY WIN IN NEW YORK CITY

Sulzer Says the People There Are Tired of Reform and Reformers.

Representative William Sulzer, of New York, who is in the city attending to departmental work for his constituents, was at the Capitol this morning. When asked about politics in the Empire State and city, he said:

"The Democrats will elect the next mayor of New York by a majority of more than 100,000. The people are tired of reform and reformers. We are also sure the State will go Democratic at the coming Presidential election."

Mr. Sulzer refused to discuss the candidacy of former President Cleveland, or mention the names of the men from whom the Democrats expect to select their candidate for mayor.

Representative Sulzer was at the Navy Department yesterday looking after the interests of his constituents, as he expressed it.

"I find," said Mr. Sulzer, "I get very courteous replies from department officials when I write to them, but I have learned I get better results, surer and quicker, by coming to Washington occasionally and attending to matters personally. There are some men in Congress who believe their only duty is to be here when Congress is in session, but I think the interests of my constituents are better conserved if I come over to Washington occasionally during the recess and look after their affairs."

HARVARD REFUSES TO SEND TEAM ABROAD
Not to Enter International Track Meet in London.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 13.—The "Yale News" says this morning: "For several weeks negotiations have been carried on between Yale and Harvard and Oxford and Cambridge for an international track meet to be held in London. On April 19 a challenge was received from the English universities for such a meet to be held in London some time during the first two weeks of July."

"The matter was immediately put in the hands of the Yale track management and the Harvard athletic committee, and everything seemed to point to the acceptance of the challenge. Yale was strongly in favor of sending a team abroad and from all that could be learned there seemed to be little doubt that Harvard would join Yale. Word was received, however, from the Harvard athletic committee that they had decided not to accept. The reason for the refusal is at present unknown, and comes as a surprise to many."
